Dear Friends,

As I write to you, our freshmen have just arrived for their orientation to U of D Jesuit. Looking at the faces of these young men — some eager, some skittish — I am filled with gratitude and excitement as they begin their lifelong journey as Cubs. Just as those before them have for over 134 years, they come from near and far, city and suburb to begin “the Jesuit experience.” But what does that entail?

When asked this question, many might identify academic excellence and faith formation, and of course they would be on the right track. Others would reference the “five characteristics of a graduate at graduation,” and without a doubt, we do hope that each student leaves here open to growth, intellectually competent, religious, loving, and committed to doing justice. Some well versed in Ignatian pedagogy would mention context, experience, reflection, action, and evaluation — certainly this insightful progression has stood the test of time and formed countless “Men for Others.”

These answers would all be correct. Yet today, watching this new crew come through our doors and reflecting upon what goes on here at 8400 South Cambridge, the broader concept of “finding God in all things” strikes me and, I believe, encapsulates our motivation and our calling as educators. At the very heart of the Jesuit experience—and, I pray, of every Cub’s time here — is this simple but powerful notion.

Our faculty teach their material to equip students with the knowledge and tools they need to excel in college and beyond; they help our young men develop a disciplined approach to academics and life; and they push our students rigorously toward the “Greater Glory of God.” Underpinning all of these things, though, is a philosophy that the classroom itself is also a primary place to find God. Whether in literature, chemistry, or Latin grammar, our faculty aim to lead our students to a point of wonder and awe at the world that God created and declared “good.” And while theology, service experiences, and retreats help our young men come to know, love, and serve the Lord, faith formation at U of D Jesuit reaches well beyond these obvious pillars of Catholic education.

"The world is charged with the grandeur of God," wrote Gerard Manley Hopkins, S.J., and we know the poet’s words to be true. It is our privilege to play a part in helping each student encounter his loving Creator in every aspect of his experience here.

Thank you for all your support!

God bless,

Karl Kiser, S.J.
President
What a great issue! The explanation of "Pledge Detroit" (Mission Accomplished! Students change annual fundraiser to tie-in with school’s mission, Winter 2010-2011) was wonderful. Since I'm not around the school, it was nice to read how it all came down. The Senate Officers need to be commended on a great idea and as Tom O'Keefe says, "It's a great day to be a Cub." We are blessed to be affiliated with such a great school!
— Barb LaRouere

I really enjoyed your interview with Jack Forrester (Where are they Now?, Winter 2010-2011). He inspired my lifelong interest in history through his AP classes and such icons as the "Paris Wheel," depicting the reign of the Sun King. I also remember his Contemporary Politics class and the visit by Donald Lobsinger who tried to convince us there was a world-wide Communist conspiracy out there.

Because of Mr. Forrester's inspiration, I went on to study history at the University of Michigan before I went in the Navy. Teachers like him, Don Gulock, Lou Offer, Fr. Frank Canfield, Fr. Pat Rice, Fr. Mike Vincent and many others inspired me to go into teaching as my second career. Mr. Gulock would be surprised to hear I am teaching high school math but perhaps Mr. Forrester will be pleased to know that I try to bring some history into it whenever I can.
— Tom Beall, '79

Thank you so much for the piece on Jack Forrester. I enjoy hearing about retired faculty, especially ones that were as special as Jack.

Many faculty were important influences of course; Jack was one of them. Although I didn’t realize it then, I think his Contemporary Politics class (and I remember the erasers and the Spartacus League) was a critical factor in generating my lifelong involvement in public policy.

Jack's class -- and others -- made "Men for Others" real to me.
Thanks to him and Mike Gill for the piece.
— Dan Immergluck '79

James Boynton, S.J. - Social Studies
U of D Jesuit welcomes back Brother Jim Boynton, S.J. to The High. Brother B previously taught at the school from 1996-2002. Raised in St. Ignace, he joined the Jesuits in 1987 and has taught in India, Nepal, Cleveland, Detroit, and Mexico. He has also served as Vocations Director for the Jesuits, ran the summer programs for St. Anne’s Catholic Church on Mackinac Island, and has led many medical brigades for International Samaritan. Prior to returning to U of D Jesuit he was stationed in Haiti, where he was Principal of a school until the earthquake of January 2010, when he became involved in medical relief and reconstruction.

Denise Brennan – Math
Denise Brennan graduated from Eastern Michigan University with a Bachelors of Fine Arts with a certification in Art Education Grades K-12 and a Secondary certification for grades 7-8 in All Subjects. After graduation, Denise spent nine years subbing in several public school districts west of Detroit, and she continued her education. She completed coursework at Madonna University and acquired a Mathematics certification for grades 6-12. In September, she started a Master’s program at Madonna in Educational Technology. Denise worked at Ladywood High School for over 13 years and moved to U of D Jesuit teaching part-time this past January. This year she joins us full-time in the Math Department.

Christopher Charboneau – Music Director
After spending 18 years in Michigan public schools teaching band, choir and other music classes, Chris Charboneau comes to U of D Jesuit. He has spent the last six years in the Oak Park Public Schools where his Jazz Band has been recognized as one of the finest jazz ensembles in all of southern lower Michigan. Throughout his career, his ensembles have won over 60 awards at the district, state and national levels, and he has received numerous accolades as an educator including the Walt Disney Award for Excellence in Teaching. He has been recognized four times in the “Who’s Who Among America’s Teachers,” placing him in less than 1% of American teachers to be nominated four times or more.

Alex Davidson ’06 – English
Alex Davidson graduated from U of D Jesuit in 2006, moving on to the University of Michigan - Ann Arbor where he studied English, History and Secondary Education. Last year, Alex served as an Alumni Volunteer Corp member at The High. Alex is excited to be back for another year at the high school and Jesuit Academy teaching English and Study Skills.

R. J. Fichtinger, S.J. – Counseling/Theology
R. J. Fichtinger, S.J. was born and raised in Minnesota attending University of St. Thomas in St. Paul, MN where he obtained a degree in Social Work. He worked for two years as a crisis youth and family counselor at the Bridge for Runaway Youth working with teens and their families who were in crisis. After discerning a vocation to the religious life, he entered the Jesuits in 2006, took vows in 2008 and completed philosophy studies at Loyola University Chicago this past May. In addition to his duties as the Jesuit Academy school counselor, he will teach two sections of Freshman Theology and serve as an assistant coach to the freshman football team.

Nicholas Kocsis – Athletic Director
Nick Kocsis spent the first part of his career as a secondary school educator before entering school administration as U of D Jesuit’s new Athletic Director. Nick is a graduate of Western Michigan University. He earned his bachelors with a major in Education and History and a minor in Group Social Studies. He also has a Master’s degree in Educational Leadership from Grand Valley State University. After graduating from college, he taught at Penn High School in Mishawaka, IN and Bloomingdale High School in Bloomingdale, MI. Nick’s last ten years were spent teaching and coaching at Zeeland East High School. While in Zeeland, Nick wrote the district’s curriculum for AP European History, rewrote the district’s World History curriculum, and pioneered the district’s first online-based blended history course. At Zeeland East, he coached JV softball, served as Varsity Assistant Head Football Coach (District Title in 2010), and as the of Men’s Track and Field Head Coach (Regional Title in 2011). He has also coached golf and baseball at the high school level.

Michelle MacLachlan – Administrative Assistant to the Dean of Students
Michelle MacLachlan is a proud mother of five children (two Cubs: Malcolm ’08 and Ian ’11) ages 21, 20, 18, 16 and 14. She started elementary school just a bit down the road at Gesu. After a lot of movement to different states, she has ended up right back where she started. Her heart and soul reside in this school and she is honored to be part of an institution which has been an integral part of her life. To continue to propagate the mission of the school and help facilitate the wholistic growth of our young men in the Jesuit tradition is amongst her most important goals.

Robert Phillips – Building Sub/Theology
Bob Phillips served the U of D Jesuit community last year as the school’s outside building substitute. This year, he officially joins our faculty in a part-time capacity. He teaches one section of Jesuit Academy theology and will continue to serve as the school’s building sub. Bob has worked in Catholic schools as a theology teacher, campus minister and Dean of Students for 30 years. He also specializes in substance abuse prevention and education.

Cyril Pinchak, S.J. – English
Born and raised in the Cleveland suburb of Shaker Heights, OH, Cyril Pinchak, S.J. attended Gilmour Academy, a high school run by the Brothers of the Holy Cross, and graduated from John Carroll University in 2006 with a BA in English. Cyril then joined the Jesuits and lived in Berkley, MI as a novice and had the pleasure of working at U of D Jesuit for four months as part of his formation. Happy to be returning to Detroit after a three year exile in Chicago, Cyril studied Philosophy and earned an MA in English from Loyola Chicago. He will help out with the cross country and track & field teams and possibly with the choir. Cyril teaches the sophomore American Literature course for the English Department.

Robert Smitka – Science
Bob Smitka states, “I am extremely excited to be joining the faculty here at U of D Jesuit and can’t wait to step into the classroom to share my teaching experiences and love for science with my new students.” He comes to U of D Jesuit from Roseville High School where he spent the last five years teaching Biology, Honors Biology and Environmental Science. Prior to that, he spent time in other school districts teaching Chemistry, Anatomy and Physiology. In addition to his teaching career, Bob received the honor of being chosen to participate in the Weightless Flights of Discovery program in which science teachers from around the nation were able to design lab experiments and bring them up into a zero-gravity flight above the Great Lakes to document and experience what happens. In addition to the zero-gravity flight, he worked with the Detroit Science Center for the past five summers in their educators program and was honored to work as a science consultant with the Red Bull Air Race Detroit when they first came to town, helping to design the educational science curriculum that accompanies the United States races. Bob states that “all three are like none that I have experienced before and all have helped energize my love for teaching and sharing the excitement of science with others.” He joins the Science Department teaching Biology and Chemistry.

Matthew Wooters – Academy Social Studies
Matt Wooters was born and raised in Silver Spring, MD. He graduated from Georgetown Preparatory School in 2005 and went on to John Carroll University in Cleveland, where he graduated with a degree in Political Science and minor in History. Upon graduating Matt moved to Punta Gorda, Belize where he served as a Jesuit Volunteer for the past two years working in the local Jesuit parish. His responsibilities included leading over a hundred retreats in remote Mayan villages, preparing students in 30 different elementary schools for Confirmation, and leading retreats to all the 8th graders in those schools. His term of service concluded earlier this summer, and he looks forward to working in the U of D Jesuit Academy teaching Social Studies. Matt enjoys swimming, running and yoga.
WHO’S NEW AT THE HIGH: Alumni Volunteer Corps

The program founded in 1994 by then President, Fr. Timothy Shannon, S.J., provides an opportunity for alumni to use their talents and energies to benefit the U of D Jesuit Community on a daily basis. The AVC program offers a unique opportunity to influence students in many different ways and offers young alumni the chance to be “Men for Others.” The AVC’s benefit from living as a community in a school-owned house located near the campus, free utilities, a small living stipend, professional career advice, a wide range of work experience, the challenge to serve others and the chance to develop spiritually.

Jonathan Kirkland ’07
St. Joseph’s College (Indiana), 2011
Political Science

Why did you return to U of D Jesuit?
I returned to U of D Jesuit to give back to the school community. U of D Jesuit taught me how to be successful at the college level, and I look forward to helping the current students prepare for college.

Did you participate in any cocurriculars or athletics when you were a student at U of D Jesuit?
I was a member of the football and track teams. I also participated in B.A.S.E.

Why did you decide to become an AVC?
I decided to become an AVC to spend a year giving back to U of D Jesuit, while preparing for law school. I also became an AVC to be a mentor to the students as they take on the challenging curriculum at U of D Jesuit.

Any advice for current students?
Study hard. Stay focused. Go Cubs!

Jacob Mikula ’07
Albion College, 2011
English and History

Why did you return to U of D Jesuit?
It’s a very comfortable place for me, and I felt like it would be a great place to explore the world of teaching in order to figure out if it’s something I want to pursue.

Did you participate in any cocurriculars or athletics when you were a student at U of D Jesuit?
No cocurriculars or athletics; two-time Intramural Champ (basketball and dodgeball)

Why did you decide to become an AVC?
U of D Jesuit prepared me for college more so than most of my college friends. I felt like it was only right that I give back.

Any advice for current students?
Listen to what the teachers have to say about study habits and procrastination. Those are the two things I saw people struggle with in college, fortunately U of D Jesuit prepared me well for those two things.
Andrew Pierce ‘07
Yale University, 2011
Neurological Psychology

Why did you return to U of D Jesuit?
U of D Jesuit laid the foundation for my successful college experience, and it would be an injustice not to give back.

Did you participate in any cocurriculars or athletics when you were a student at U of D Jesuit?
I participated on the swim and track teams, Forum (now defunct), Intramural Bowling and the Student Senate.

Why did you decide to become an AVC?
My eventual goal is to attend medical school, and the AVC Program provides an ideal transition period between my undergraduate and graduate schooling.

Any advice for current students?
Spend as much time with your friends as possible.

Stephen Monette ‘07
Michigan State University, 2011
Microbiology, B.S.

Why did you return to U of D Jesuit?
I returned to U of D Jesuit to give back to a school that set me off on the right foot in life, and for that I feel like I should be doing my part to help other future alums do the same.

Did you participate in any cocurriculars or athletics when you were a student at U of D Jesuit?
I participated in varsity soccer and track, Honduras Mission Trips, Spanish Club and the National Honor Society.

Why did you decide to become an AVC?
The AVC program seemed like the perfect segway for me between undergrad and medical school. Taking a year off to give back to the school I love while preparing for my future endeavors seemed like the perfect way to spend a year in between school.

Any advice for current students?
Get involved and step out of your comfort zone. Good things will happen.

Daniel Ruemenapp ‘07
Boston College, 2011
Psychology; Minor: Hispanic Studies

Why did you return to U of D Jesuit?
I wanted to give back to my U of D Jesuit family and the city of Detroit for everything they inspired me to do. I also want to inspire love for the world, diversity and motivate the students to become an active and knowledgeable world citizen.

Did you participate in any cocurriculars or athletics when you were a student at U of D Jesuit?
I participated in football, baseball and wrestling. I also participated in the Christian Service Team, mission trip to Guatemala and the Student Senate.

Why did you decide to become an AVC?
The AVC Program not only provides the opportunity to give back to U of D Jesuit, but it is also the perfect opportunity to prepare myself as I apply to law school.

Any advice for current students?
Follow your heart, always question what you know in order to find the truth and be active with passion.
For many people, first vows, ordinations, and final vows all just run together. On May 22, I attended the final vows of my friend, U of D Jesuit’s President, Fr. Karl Kiser. With the support of more than 1,000 people in attendance, Karl knelt in front of the Blessed Sacrament and professed in a final and definitive way that he is a Jesuit. Mind you, Karl was ordained in 1997 and he first took vows in 1986. So what does it mean that he professed his solemn vows of final incorporation into the Society 27 years after he entered the novitiate? It is all about promise and potential, and ideally how the Society challenges and tests Jesuits in formation to hone their talents and gifts. Our intellects, imaginations, passions, and convictions are offered in service of the Church and all of God’s people. At final vows, all of it — our very priesthood — is placed at the disposal of God through the Society of Jesus.

When a Jesuit professes first vows after two years in the novitiate, the formula sounds almost ornate, especially compared to the simplicity of final vows. For first vows, the Jesuit novice promises to become poor, chaste, and obedient with God’s help. At final vows, the Jesuit professes who he has become over the past many years, and the Society affirms that what he professes is true. Listening to Karl profess who he has become was an honor for the Jesuits and lay people in attendance because all of us to varying degrees have had the privilege of watching the events and moments of joy, sorrow, humor, and holiness that have made him into the Jesuit he is. It was a sacred moment that gave me a sense of gratitude for the Society and God’s generosity to it. Final vows might seem redundant or esoteric, and trying to explain them to people is something of an impossible task. They are, however, representative of the culmination of a lot of work and effort for equipping a Jesuit to do great things for the people he is sent to. They represent a profound moment where a man pledges that he will take care of the Society and the Society acknowledges that he can because of who he has become.
U of D Jesuit employees honored for years of service

Paul Diehl ’73
Vaughn Rowe
Nicholas Young

U of D Jesuit’s President, Fr. Karl Kiser, S.J. recently honored seventeen faculty and staff employees at a special luncheon for their years of service. The 2010-11 honorees were:

25-year honorees
Paul Diehl ’73

10-year honorees
LaTonya Clay
James Hassett
Holly Markiecki-Bennetts
Dennis Szydlowski

20-year honorees
Vaughn Rowe
Nicholas Young

5-year honorees
Dennis Dael
Pamela Linton
Laura LoDuca
Byron Marquis
Patrick Peppard, S.J. (22nd non-consecutive year)
Kevin Tuite

15-year honorees
Rick Bennetts
Robert Buchta ’66
Patricia Rinke
Kathleen Schuchardt

Sal Malek ’67 and Gus Johnson ’85 honored by Catholic League

The Catholic High School League Hall of Fame honored Sal Malek ’67 as Person of the Year and Gus Johnson ’85 as a Past Athlete honoree. Over 15 Cubs were in attendance to congratulate them. Malek is the long-time Athletic Director at Ladywood High School, while Johnson is a national announcer known best for his broadcasts of college basketball and NFL football.

Bob Williams receives Vern Norris Award

Bob Williams, a high school athletic official in the Detroit area for 41 years and Director of Plant Operations at U of D Jesuit, received the Vern Norris Award from the Michigan High School Athletic Association on April 30 at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing. The award is presented annually to a veteran official who has been active in a local officials association, has mentored other officials, and has been involved in officials’ education.

Tom Markowski of The Detroit News wrote this about Bob in a recent article, “But what makes Williams such a good official, and deserving of this award, is his work away from the court... Good officials are seemingly harder and harder to find and Williams is one guy looking to improve upon this situation.”

Cub campus gets spruced up

Things are just a little shinier, brighter, and greener around the campus of 8400 South Cambridge.

With school on summer break, U of D Jesuit launched a number of high-profile projects to improve the facilities.

The rusting wrought iron fencing around the front perimeter of the school was removed and replaced with new fencing. The Common’s floor was replaced to match the cafeteria floor, which was also replaced last summer.

In July and August, attention turned to the back athletic field and gym. The field turf on the athletic field lived its life span of ten years and was replaced with a fresh new look. Now it has an interlocked U of D Jesuit logo at midfield, real football goalposts, new soccer and lacrosse nets as well as a new chain link fence to enclose the back perimeter of the school.

The gym received a facelift as a fresh coat of paint was added to spruce up the walls. Thanks to gifts from the class of 1973, a new sound system and scoreboards were also added. The gym floor was sanded, painted and sealed. New additions to the floor include the interlocked U of D Jesuit logo at midcourt, “CUBS” in front of the visitor’s bench and home student section, and “U of D Jesuit” on each baseline.

Arriving on the job just as all of this work launched, new Athletic Director Nick Kocsis noted: “All of Cub Nation should be very proud. The recent facility upgrades to our back field and gym floors are not only beautiful, but make these facilities amongst the best in the area. (Director of Plant Operations) Bob Williams and his crew deserve a lot of credit for the planning that went into these improvements.”

U of D Jesuit has produced many alumni involved in the field of science. A quick scan of the school’s alumni database turns up nearly 800 names of alumni involved in a job that somehow connects to the field of science. From doctors to engineers and many places in between, U of D Jesuit alumni are a scientific bunch.

Whether one’s career branched into the sciences or not, U of D Jesuit has always had a top-notch science program filled with memorable teachers throughout the years. It developed critical thinking while exposing students’ imagination to science.

Going forward, our current faculty envision where science may be headed and how U of D Jesuit needs to remain on the leading frontier of educating students for the next bold steps that science takes.

Highlights ties all these pieces together. We discover where alumni have taken their careers after they’ve left 8400 South Cambridge. We recall great teachers of the science department at The High and laugh at a few of those moments when the hypothesis and the action did not match. We celebrate Tom Coyne ’62 as he continues to work away in his Biology lab, just as he has for 43 amazing years. Other current faculty members discuss the future of science and the school’s programs. Finally, we examine the beginning of a plan for a new Science and Engineering Center on campus.

Through U of D Jesuit, the world of science opens students’ minds and the careers of alumni, in the immortal words of Toy Story’s Buzz Lightyear, “to infinity and beyond!”
FEATURE STORY

Dissect this!

Alumni recall their time in the Cub science classrooms.

Different eras...different names — but similar stories. When U of D Jesuit contacted alumni via social media and e-mail soliciting them for stories of their days in a U of D Jesuit science classroom, they were flooded with submissions — too many to possibly include in any Highlights story.

Still, when sifting through the recollections that came from different generations, three popular themes surfaced throughout:

• The academic rigor of the school’s science program;
• The quality of instruction received by outstanding teachers in the Science Department;
• Memories of something that didn’t go quite as scripted for the instructor.

ALUMNI IN SCIENCE

U of D Jesuit alumni share their involvement in the world of science

Because I graduated in the age of WWII and the Age of Plastics I chose Chemical Engineering as my major. When I attended my first general chemistry lecture at the University of Detroit and realized that most, if not all of the other frosh, had prior chemistry courses and were proficient with a slide rule (which I had never seen or even heard of) I was pretty well dismayed. I eventually recovered and received a BS in chemical engineering from Illinois Institute of Technology (in the Navy’s V12 program). Mr. Stepaniak was our Physics teacher and a good one. After the War (I was commissioned Ensign and served on the USS New Jersey) I attended DePaul University’s College of Law and received a JD degree. During these four years of night school I was employed full-time in the patent department of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana). After eight years at Standard I joined a small but well regarded law firm specializing in Intellectual Property Law (patents, trade marks, copyrights, etc.) where I thereafter spent most of my time trying lawsuits for corporations in the petroleum and chemical industries (Monsanto, Union Carbide, Chevron, SOHIO, Amoco, etc.)

—Fred Leydig ’42

I practice and teach in the field of Emergency Medicine.

—Michael Washington ’73
I’m in my 16th year of engineering at Ford. I received my BS in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Michigan, Dearborn and my MS in Engineering from Purdue.

—Len Prezecki ’90

From Latin and Greek at “The High” to a chemical engineering degree to electron beam processing: career planning has not been my strong suit, but at least I had a truly outstanding high school education as a foundation. I am now CEO of E-BEAM Services, Inc.

—Paul Minbiole ’65

Since October 1999, I’m a professor of Physics at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City. I’m also Associate Dean in the College of Science (Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics, and Physics & Astronomy) since July 2008. I run a research group (a post doc, 3 grad students, 3 undergraduates) that studies experimental atomic physics, the interaction of light with alkali-metal atoms, spin-polarized noble gases, and magnetic resonance.

—Brian Saam ’84

the following year, with a teacher (Mr. Rolland Smith) who didn’t believe in such a rule, the majority of the class found themselves on academic suspension for their lack of turning in assignments. Despite getting an “F minus minus” on a term paper with a note that it was the worst paper the teacher had ever received, something must have clicked in the sciences: Doyle’s eldest daughter is a Marine Biologist and his second daughter is working on her Masters to teach high school Biology.

Bob Toohey’s ’78 memories harkens back to the smell of formaldehyde when dissecting frogs while Peter Guenther ’92 (and current faculty member) recalled Mr. Terry George hooking his braces up to a Van der Graaf generator to see what would happen.

Decades earlier, Bob Vorbroker ’71 had a memory that involved a Van der Graaf generator in his classroom that sat in the corner by the door,” he said. “One day, he had all the students form a circle around the room, holding hands with each other. The two students closest to the generator held onto electrodes on opposite sides of the generator. Mr. Stepaniak asked if we were ready, whereupon he turned on the device. Within moments a jolt of static electricity ran through the circle, shocking each of us and causing us to shout out and release our grip on each other. With that Mr. Stepaniak gave an evil smirk and said, ‘Let’s do that again, shall we, gentlemen?’ Knowing what was coming made the second time even more painful!”

Wang ’78 tackles treatments to autism; Fragile X

By Mike Gill ’87

Dr. Paul Wang ’78 jokes that he sees the “magic of biochemistry” when he brews his own beer at home.

Like many other Cub alums, he calls Tom Coyne ’62 his most influential teacher since he made biology “fascinating, rigorous and fun.”

But unlike some, Wang has applied the science lessons he learned at The High much further than simply developing a tasty hops melt. Wang works on the cutting edge, developing new pharmacologic treatments for autism and for Fragile X Syndrome (FXS), the most common genetic cause of autism.

As the Vice President of Clinical Development at Seaside Therapeutics, Wang is broadly responsible for the company’s clinical strategy, and specifically for designing patient studies and interpreting the data from the studies when they are completed. Working with academic experts on autism and FXS to design and conduct the studies, he interfaces with the FDA and the European Medicines Agency (EMA) to discuss the company’s research plans, making sure that they fit with the FDA’s and EMA’s requirements. Wang also leads the dissemination and publication of the company’s study results.

Currently, Wang and his company are in the process of testing the drug they have developed for safety and for efficacy in FXS and autism. “Based on preliminary data, we are very hopeful...”
I am a Professional Engineer working on a 1600 MW Prairie State Energy Campus being built by Bechtel Corporation in Marissa, IL. My job title is Senior Startup Engineer. I take over power plant systems after they have been built; perform preliminary testing, cleaning, tuning and operations to turn over to the client a fully functional power plant. I am a system engineer which means that I am multi-disciplined, capable of working on mechanical, electrical, and control systems. I have commissioned every type of power plant that is built with the exception of geothermal and solar. I have worked all over the world. I use Chemistry in chemical cleaning of piping, water treatment, boiler water chemistry. I use Biology in sewage treatment plants. I use Physics in steam blows velocity flushing, air and glass blows.

Dr. Wang on U of D Jesuit:
"U of D High was so important to me — it really was crucial in developing a love of learning and intellectual curiosity. The teachers (Mr. Coyne, Mr. Gulock, Fr. Ober, Fr. Zubricki, Mr. Buryta, Senor Rodriguez, and many, many others) demanded our best, but also gave their best to us, thus setting an unforgettable example for the students."

Four teachers from the U of D Jesuit Science Department discuss with Highlights what they see for the future of science; how they engage all students in applying science in their lives; and what a new U of D Jesuit science facility would mean to them and their lesson plans.
How do you see science playing a key role in the future of our world?

Claudia Foerg: Our future depends on the advances in science. The human race is looking at projected shortages in food, water and energy. This will lead to other areas of critical need. Science and engineering will play a pivotal role in how we address and remediate these burgeoning problems.

Dominic Coccitti-Smith: The essential backbone of the future lies in the advancement of science and technology. From politics to industry and sociology to medicine, science plays the role of the driving force of the future. Humanity will not be able to move forward towards a greater peace and stability without the influence of science and technology. It allows for the creation of technologies that can ease suffering and promote an overall more joyous society. When used ethically and morally responsible, science and technology can create a world of greater equity and accessibility to all of the world. It allows for advanced medical treatment in remote areas of the world, access to education in a global classroom, and the spread of information through all aspects of society.

Priscilla Oshikiri: Research and development in science produced many wonderful discoveries and inventions that improved our quality of life and gave us a better understanding of the world around us. In medicine, researchers are tirelessly seeking drugs that would cure cancer and AIDS, and find new ways to outsmart the “bugs” so they can slow down or prevent the evolution of “superbugs.” The technology that is so prevalent in our daily lives will keep improving, making computer chips smaller and running faster. We also look up to technology to make our society secure by making safeguards so that technology will be used with discretion and discrimination.

Ben Godwin: The one word that comes to mind for how science plays a key role in our future can be summed up in one word: Technology. Technology is growing at an exponential rate and in order to give students, especially those interested in the sciences, the best chance at being successful is to provide them with a strong background in science. With the advancements in technology come better tools and instruments to utilize as well. This can help tomorrow’s scientists make new discoveries and build on existing theories.

In your subject of expertise, what is your list of upcoming (or currently happening) science breakthroughs?

Coccitti-Smith: Since Jenner’s use of a cowpox vaccine in the late 1700s and Salk’s polio vaccine in 1950s, vaccinations have been an essential part of medical breakthroughs. As our knowledge of virology and vaccinology increases, we will be able to provide vaccines for various diseases that plague our modern society. From research in HIV/AIDS to deadly strains of influenza, the scientific community has been making great strides in understanding how a vaccine may be able to prevent these diseases. He continued mapping of the human genome... and understanding of its secrets locked inside will assist in determining the cause and possible prevention of many genetic diseases. Discovering why certain regions of noncoding DNA are highly conserved through evolutionary pressures may provide clues into disease profiles of comparative infectious agents. Scientists can readily use comparative biology through the various genomes that have been mapped to aid in the discovery and invention of medications and treatments of various diseases.

Poerg: Biology is linked to many of the exploding fields in science. I foresee genetics and nanotechnology as being key areas of research to advance many of those fields with a focus on medical and agriculture.

Oshikiri: I’d list four key things:
- Stainless Steels, Cobalt Chrome and Titanium Alloys in Medical Devices.
- Nitinol for Medical Devices – (memory shape alloy) for stents, medical device, textiles.
- Metallic glass – for cell phone cases, aircraft parts.
- Super rubber – created by Japanese scientists that can bounce like rubber, can conduct electricity and can withstand extreme temperatures.

The list can go on and on and on, but bottom line is, materials science holds the key to our future.

What big picture concepts does a student take out of the U of D Jesuit Science Department or your class in particular?

Coccitti-Smith: A graduate of University of Detroit Jesuit excels not only in his ability and knowledge of the scientific method but also in how science pertains to its influence on society. C.P. Snow eloquently theorized that the two cultures of science and the humanities must complement each other so as to improve society. Our students can relate what is taught in the sciences and the connection that is present in other aspects of society in terms of how technology is used and what moral and ethical implications lie within the sciences. They can critically analyze what is taught in the classroom through a compassionate and Christ-centered lens.

Poerg: The interconnectedness of the world and of the sciences. Nothing/no one operates in a vacuum, our actions and the changes we make effect others. We are all interdependent.

Oshikiri: Acquiring strong laboratory skills and being academically prepared for college are some of the main goals for my chemistry class.

Godwin: Academy Sciences are great courses to teach. Over the two years, we get to explore and investigate numerous subjects in science. These courses are like an overview: it gives the students a taste of topics ranging from plants and animals to elementary Physics to Astronomy and even Geology. It’s great because it allows students to see what science(s) interest them so when they are in the high school, they are able to choose electives based on their interests.

ALUMNI IN SCIENCE
U of D Jesuit alumni share their involvement in the world of science

My college education was through the University of Michigan’s College of Engineering. Specifically, I earned a Bachelor’s in Electrical Engineering and a Master’s and Doctorate in Nuclear Engineering & Radiological Sciences.

In 2009, I completed a residency in Imaging Physics at MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, TX. While this may sound like a departure from engineering, my background was actually very well suited to medical physics. My electrical engineering studies included electromagnetics and semiconductor devices. My nuclear engineering studies focused on radiation detection and medical imaging. (It is not unusual for medical physicists to come from nuclear engineering programs.) As of 2010, I became certified by the American Board of Radiology in Radiological Physics.

I am now employed as a Diagnostic Medical Physicist at Wilford Hall Medical Center, the primary hospital for the U.S. Air Force, located on the grounds of Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, TX. I provide physics support and quality control/assurance for most of the imaging modalities at Wilford Hall, including x-ray, CT, and MRI. Our department also supports several other Air Force medical clinics not only in the U.S. but also in Europe and the Pacific. I am also involved in patient/personnel radiation safety and physics education for the radiology residents.

—Dr. Philip M. Tchou ’96, PhD, DABR(D)
For a student not interested in a career in the sciences, what broad lessons does he learn from his time in your classroom and studying sciences at U of D Jesuit?

Godwin: From my classroom as well as other science classrooms, students learn valuable life lessons. First, they learn to problem solve. Many times students are given questions and they need to find an answer for it. They are also always making connections between science and the world we live in. For instance, when talking about photosynthesis during fall, students are able to draw connections between leaf color, food production, and the time of year. In Integrated Science 8, we spend some time on fossil fuels and energy usage. In today's time of gas prices and energy conservation, it gives students the "why" the government is imposing MPG guidelines and hybrid/electric cars are so popular.

Oshikiri: All that I expect of the students is for them to become informed consumers. If they know the basics of chemistry they won’t be duped into buying items that are sold online like dehydrated water” (we got a kick out of this) or water that will nourish the cells faster since their bond angles were larger.
One of the things that I tried to instill in them is to read labels of food, find out what it contains, why it is in the food and the good and bad effects on the body. I try to relate the concepts to everyday life so that they will be aware how science dominates our daily existence.

Coccitti-Smith: Students that do not have a deep passion for science can still learn to consciously evaluate situations of problem solving. The scientific method, while developed by Alahazen for evaluating scientific inquiry, is not exclusive to

How do you see a new science facility affecting the way you conduct your class and what a student receives as part of his science education at U of D Jesuit?

Foerg: The study of science helps our students to be amazed by God’s creation. We can expand the richness of the science experience by having labs available all of the time. The students can be more engaged in doing science than just learning how to do science. “The greatest discoveries have been made while researching something else.” Our student need more time to actually experience the wonder of science.
To offer more courses that give the students a taste of what is possible I think will be key.
Coccitti-Smith: A science facility will allow students and faculty the ability to increase their appreciation for their quest for knowledge. A new laboratory/classroom design will make possible an easy application of theoretical textbook themes and their hands-on implementation. Inspiration of student’s knowledge will be precipitated by the presence of a new building with large windows to stir imagination from the natural world. Chemical models, animal skeletons (per our Anatomy class), physics demonstrations and biology projects displayed in the showcases will fuel a student’s fire and passion for science.

Oshikiri: A new science facility, with each teacher having our own labs would mean that we can have more lab experiments since we do not have to share the space with other classes. A lot more of hands-on activities and collaborative learning will be possible to enhance the inquiry-based science curriculum that we are all heading to.

Godwin: This new lab facility will be exactly what U of D Jesuit’s science department needs to take the curriculum to the next level. First, it will simply give the teachers space. Labs can be set up and maintained for student investigation for longer than a 40 minute period. It will also give the school the necessary updates for equipment, space, and set-up that we need. From the Academy standpoint, it has been difficult to get the Academy students into the labs. The teachers have been more than accommodating; however, there is simply not enough space. With the addition, I will be able to get the Academy students down to the lab more!

Robotics Team presents students with real world challenges

By Peter Guenther ’92

In 2005, U of D Jesuit started its Robotics Club by entering the FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) Robotics Competition. This “varsity sport of the mind” is designed to make science and engineering as exciting to high school students as professional sports and mainstream entertainment.

Every year, a new game competition is unveiled in January where students have six weeks to design, build, and program a robot with the help of adult mentors. For this intense period, students are immersed in a challenge where, like real-world engineering projects, the difficulties are significant and there’s never enough time or budget. These robots, which tend to be around five feet tall, present a host of challenges and possibilities, and students must apply what they’ve learned in physics and other science classes to stay competitive.

In their rookie year, the RoboCubs earned the third seed at their first competition, winning both the Highest Rookie Seed and an Innovation Award. Since then, the team has won several awards including one for team image.

Since 2007, U of D Jesuit has built their robots in U of D Mercy College of Engineering’s machine shop after school and on weekends. Many of the team’s alumni have gone on to study engineering or computer science. The team’s earliest members now work for employers as diverse as Lockheed-Martin, Orbitz, and the United States Air Force, while others pursue graduate degrees in technical fields.

The team has grown significantly and now consists of the FIRST team, a high school Small Robotics team, and an Academy Robotics team. Last year, more than 40 students participated regularly at one or more levels.

Alumni: If you are an engineer or LabVIEW programmer in Metro Detroit and interested in mentoring the RoboCubs, or to suggest someone to approach for corporate sponsorship, please contact Peter Guenther at peter.guenther@uofdjesuit.org or 313-927-2385.
The Energizer Teacher:
Tom Coyne ’62 keeps going and going and going

My science memories from U of D Jesuit will inextricably be linked to the one and only Tom Coyne. I remember so much from his classes, ninth grade Biology and twelfth grade BioChemistry, that I could write on and on and still feel like I had more to say.

It was Tom Coyne the person who had the biggest influence on me as a young man. And that says a lot coming from a person that majored in Biology and became a ninth grade Biology teacher for his first career in life. Mr. Coyne’s ability to see that it was, as he said it, “A great day to be alive!” no matter what was happening, is just an example of who he is on a day to day basis. His attitude causes everyone around him to perk up and enjoy the day just a little bit more. Even if you failed a recent test or quiz, he had the ability to make you feel like you could (and would) do better the next time.

I know this from personal experience. At the beginning of my ninth grade year, I struggled mightily in Bio, getting something like a D+ or C- on the first progress report. Since I was routinely a good student, I was not satisfied with this grade and went to meet with Mr. Coyne after school. We worked together for the rest of the year, until I was earning A’s in his class. I took this success and continued it again in twelfth grade when I took Mr. Coyne’s Honors Biochemistry class. From there, I majored in Biology at the University of Michigan and took a job as a ninth grade Biology teacher at a boarding school in New Hampshire. I will forever be grateful for his work with me (and I know MY students are also grateful!).

I have tried to incorporate the vim and vigor that Mr. Coyne puts into his class/outlook on life and bring it into my own classroom. I really believe that who I am as a teacher is a reflection of my memories of Mr. Coyne. Due to this, Mr. Coyne has unknowingly touched another generation of students that have sat in my Biology classroom. Mr. Coyne is a living legend and will always be who I think of when I reflect back on, not just the science program, but all of U of D Jesuit.

My memories go on and on. I could talk about his unwavering support for his sister or how I used him as an example of a leader in my Kairos retreat talk, but even if I could write a book on Tom Coyne, I feel I would always be leaving something out.

Editor’s Note: Tom Coyne started teaching at The High in 1968. In August, he began his 43rd school year at U of D Jesuit teaching part-time the subjects of Biology and BioChemistry. Each day, he is assisted in class by his sister, Sharon, whom he continues to care for daily.
New Science and Engineering Center being planned

New center to enhance U of D Jesuit’s leadership in science and engineering

With a goal of keeping up with technology and the changing educational needs of students in a modern world, U of D Jesuit began a review of its science facilities. For the past year, the school has embarked on an assessment of its science curriculum and facilities as well as evaluating how an outstanding science education could be enhanced further with additional and more modern facilities.

Under the guidance of former president, Fr. Malcolm Carron ’35, and a generous gift by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Fisher, Jr. ’38, in 1992 the school built the Alfred J. Fisher, Jr. Science Center to supplement its other science classrooms and laboratories that are now over 40 years old. With enrollment growth, vast technological innovations, and changing curriculum needs, these facilities, though then state of the art, are unable to fully meet the needs of today’s science students. Faculty members along with President Fr. Karl Kiser and Principal Mr. Tony Trudel assessed with the help of a facilitator the current facilities and potential needs.

In meetings with school administrators, science faculty, members of the Board of Directors, alumni and architects, guiding principles (see left box) were established for the future project. Commenting on one of the principles, Fr. Kiser said, “I want this to be a Science and Engineering Center where the students gain not just access to scientific knowledge but one that opens their minds to the beauty that God has endowed us with in this world.”

The facility will enhance individual and group learning experiences by integrating classroom and laboratories along with expanding the use of camera technology, digital probes, and computer simulations. Robotics and engineering courses which are relatively new offerings continue to attract more students. Today, many of these activities take place at University of Detroit Mercy as adequate space is not available at the high school.

“We want to make sure our students are successfully prepared for the college campus but also to think in broad ways,” Fr. Kiser said. “There is a need for high quality engineering, robotics and science jobs in our society. We want to prepare our students for these jobs.”

Stay tuned to the school’s website, U of D Jesuit’s social media sites and future announcements to follow the progress of the new Science and Engineering Center.

Guiding Principles for U of D Jesuit’s new Science and Engineering Center

- Foundation is our Jesuit and Catholic identity
- Inspire students to “find God in all things”
- Address new curriculum: engineering and robotics
- Leaders in science and technology in Southeast Michigan
- Long-term solution
- Financially prudent
College Choices for the Class of 2011

The following is a listing of the colleges and universities which the 176 members of the Class of 2011 will be attending. Members of the graduating class earned an impressive four year total of $17,997,664 in scholarships! Congratulations to the Class of 2011 as they join the ranks of more than 13,000 U of D Jesuit alumni.

2011 MATRICULATION BREAKDOWN
U of D Jesuit recognized two of its finest alumni as well as the graduating class of 2011 on Wednesday, April 20, 2011 at the Detroit Athletic Club for the annual Alumni-Senior Luncheon. A.J. Fisher ’38 and Steve Snider ’65 were honored as Alumni of the Year for their outstanding support of U of D Jesuit and their work in the community as “Men for Others.”

A longtime loyal supporter of U of D Jesuit, Alfred (A.J.) Fisher, Jr. was unfortunately not able to take part in the luncheon. A.J. sent his two sons, Alfred (Al) III and Michael, along with grandsons, Alfred (Al) IV ’90 and Andrew ’99 to accept the award on his behalf. A.J. graduated from U of D College and Cornell University and then joined the Navy as an Officer in World War II.

A.J. asked his longtime friend, Ed Parks ’57, to say a few words to the audience about him. Ed spoke about three reasons why U of D Jesuit could honor A.J. First, Ed noted A.J.’s professional life, including starting a successful family business with his brothers, which has grown considerably over the years and employs thousands of people.

Second, Ed spoke of the example A.J. sets with his family life, as he is the “patriarch and mentor of a large respected Christian family.” A.J. has been married for 68 years to his wife, Betty Jane. Together they have four children, 12 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren, and with each family member A.J. is “caring, worrying and mentoring.”

The final reason Ed gave for honoring A.J. is due to his generosity. Ed stated that he could give numerous examples of how A.J. has helped those in need. This includes two significant gifts to U of D Jesuit, the most recent being $1,000,000 to financial aid given to students with limited financial resources.

Ed ended his remarks by giving the audience, particularly the seniors in attendance, two qualities that stand out the most in A.J.’s life: that he always tries to do his best and that he acts with integrity in everything that he does and with every person he meets. Ed continued by saying that by putting these two principles into practice in one’s own life, you will have increased your chances of having a successful life in which you will truly become, like A.J., a “Man for Others”.

Steve Snider ‘65 was also honored at this year’s lunch. He also graduated from U of D College as well as Colorado University. In 2009, Steve retired from Exterran where he served as the CEO. He currently lives in Houston, with his wife of 41 years, Eileen (a Rosary grad), whom he says is responsible for all the good things in his life. They have two children, Sara and Zach. Zach was on hand to give an introduction about his father.

Zach spoke eloquently about Steve, mentioning that his dad’s positive influence on his life is why he chose to attend Strake Jesuit High School in Houston. Zach saw on a first hand basis how his father has lived the mission of being a “Man for Others” every day.

Steve mentioned three key events in his life have helped shaped him into the man he is today: his father pushing him to attend U of D Jesuit [even though it wasn’t Steve’s 1st choice at the time]; his son Zach choosing to attend Strake Jesuit; and his part in helping to establish Cristo Rey Jesuit High School in Houston. As he touched on each stage of his life, all seemed to tie back to the Jesuits, to whom Steve is grateful for their profound influence on his life.

Also during the luncheon, members of the class of 2011 were presented with their alumni pins marking their induction into the ranks of Cub alumni. It was a day of reconnecting old relationships and creating new ones, all while gathering together as the Cub family.

Fall 2011 | Highlights  31
In his junior year, John (JJ) Conway ‘90 wrote a 500 word essay on the “Value of a Jesuit Education.” He still remembers his mother insisting he meet the deadline and turn in his best work. JJ recalls how he started: “Dear David...” like he was writing a letter to his cousin to describe what was special about his experience thus far at U of D Jesuit. He was motivated (as was his mom) to make it exceptional because this essay contest winner would receive a scholarship to help pay tuition for his senior year, which would be a big help to his family. He was very surprised when his name was announced at an all-school assembly as the first recipient of the Hittler Family Scholarship. Twenty-two years later, JJ recalls this story with ease, referring to it as a turning point in his life. “You know the saying -- it was a time when you choose to have a serious or unserious life,” he said.

There were other incidents in his life that he also described as a wake-up call — provided courtesy of his Jesuit education. One such event was in JJ’s freshman year, when Mr. Lou Offer handed back a test which had to be signed by a parent (a requirement for low performing test scores) and JJ made a smart remark. JJ recalls that “Mr. Offer took me out in the hallway and laid down the law...with few words and plenty of action.”

Upon graduation from The High, JJ enrolled in Marquette University. He remembers his fabulous theology professors who made him long for all things Jesuit and attending 10 p.m. daily Mass at St. Joan of Arc.

The Hittler Family (Bill ’76, John ’80, Paul ’81, Dave ’83 Bob ’85) Scholarship which was established to honor Mr. & Mrs. Daniel Hittler, continues to support deserving young men who want to attend The High. The young man no longer has to write a 500-word essay, but it is clear from these recipients, that they fully understand the benefits of a Jesuit education.
Although JJ’s dad, Michael ’56, is an attorney, he and JJ only had one conversation (that lasted ten minutes) about studying law. His dad suggested that he “needed to get a professional degree and he should consider law school.” He enrolled at U of D Mercy School of Law, graduating second in his class in 1997, and completing his Jesuit education.

It will come as no surprise that JJ has already distinguished himself via his leadership positions with the State Bar of Michigan; Past Member, State Bar Board of Commissioners and Past Chair, Young Lawyers Section, along with several other committee membership positions. At a national level, JJ’s activities with the American Bar Association include Past Member of the Executive Council for the Young Lawyers Division, and four committee memberships.

Mr. Conway (along with his colleague Gerard Mantese) successfully prosecuted a class action lawsuit in favor of autistic children that resulted in a landmark settlement on June 20, 2009 requiring Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan to reverse its policy and to provide Applied Behavioral Analysis Therapy for autistic children. In 2010, the State Bar of Michigan conferred the "Champion of Justice Award" on Mr. Conway for this body of work. At the presentation ceremony, JJ was described as "a passionate advocate for children’s healthcare for many years. He has given freely of his time, working pro bono during hours convenient to his clients – early mornings, evenings and weekends.” JJ is among the youngest lawyers to ever receive this award.

Currently, along with his active trial practice in Royal Oak, JJ is a partner with the Detroit Cornerstone Schools Program, the Vice-Chair of St. Vincent de Paul Foundation and past President of the Marquette University Alumni Club of Detroit. Previous service includes, advisory boards of Matrix Human Services, the U of D Jesuit Center for Faith and Action and U of D Jesuit’s Alumni Board.

After all of these accomplishments, JJ states that the award for which he is most proud is the one he received at his high school graduation in 1990 which was established by the Jesuit Secondary Education Association, called the "Man for Others" Award. This award is presented to the senior who best resembles the following ideal: a well-rounded person who is intellectually competent, open to growth, religious, loving and committed to doing justice in generous service to the people of God.

Back in 1989, JJ chose what kind of life he decided to have. It has been a very purposeful one --and he is not yet 40.
Where are they Now?

Anne Moeser

By Mike Gill ‘87
Anne Moeser was a familiar smiling face to anyone who walked the hallway of the Alfred J. Fisher, Jr. Science Center. For 20 years, from the fall of 1990 to the spring of 2010, she taught Physics at U of D Jesuit. At the conclusion of the 2010 school year, she retired. Popular amongst her students, Anne spent a lot of hours outside of regular class time assisting them in various cocurriculars. Highlights caught up with her via an email conversation as she reflected back on her time at The High.

You’ve not been retired long. Tell us though what you’ve been up to for the past year and how you’ve still stayed involved with The High.

I have succeeded in selling my mother’s house in Mt. Clemens and moving her into my house this last spring. I have also spent time with my daughter in England, who had her first baby in April, and my daughter-in-law in San Diego, who had her second baby in February. Before that I was working on U of D Jesuit’s wonderful play, Get Smart, in the fall and the fabulous musical, Singing in the Rain, during the winter.

Tell me a little bit about your family.

My oldest, Molly, is a lawyer with O’Melveney and Meyers in Los Angeles. She’s been living there for three years after getting her law degree from U of M. My middle daughter, Gretchen, lives in England and works for the Environmental Agency, which is equivalent to our EPA. She married an Englishman and has one child, a little girl. My son, Matthew, is a pilot in the Navy and is stationed in San Diego. He has two children, a boy and a girl. Chuck, my husband, retired from Chrysler five years ago and got a job one month later with Next Energy. He says he’s been reducing his carbon footprint by working there.

I saw where your husband recently stepped down after a long time as President of the Ferndale Board of Education to become its Vice President. What’s it been like having your entire family so devoted to education?

Chuck appreciates my insight into school policies. He has a great understanding of how to run a district but realizes I’m the expert when it comes to the classroom. We both believe that it’s important to serve your community and have always made time to volunteer.

Are you still in contact with current or former faculty members or former students?

I love U of D Jesuit’s Science Department and take every opportunity to stop by and talk to them. I work closely with Mr. Manwell in the fall and can usually be found hanging around the building on Tuesdays for Science Club and on weekends for stage crew.

What’s your proudest accomplishment from your time at The High?

There are so many! I loved being involved with the mission trips both to Honduras and to South Carolina. I cherished the times I spent on retreats and appreciate the students’ involvement. I looked forward to shooting off catapults or building ROG airplanes or shooting off rockets at UDM with our students. I thoroughly enjoyed every science competition that the Science Club entered and I’m very proud of the theater students. Most of all, I loved the day to day activities and seeing one student or another finally understand how physics works.

What’s your most humorous anecdote from your teaching time?

The first year we had a catapult competition I neglected to give a maximum size for the machines. A group of students brought in a 14 foot tall and 5 foot wide catapult. Of course it was too big to go through the doors, so we took it out to the shot pit field (now the Cherrylawn parking lot) and shot it there. The guys... who built it had to sit on the base while it fired. Of course, size is not the most important factor in catapults, so when they fired it, it tipped over, even with them sitting on it and the shot went about 3 yards.

Were there any special techniques you employed that helped engage a student’s interest in science, or Physics in particular?
I spent a lot of time talking about subjects that are traditionally male dominated, like weapons and sports and how to avoid electrocution. As the years went by, I cultivated a number of “stories” that made my point in a more interesting way. Students knew when I told them a story it wasn’t necessarily true, but the physics worked.

You had the chance to be the first person to teach Physics in the science center that was built in the early 1990s. Give us your thoughts as U of D Jesuit’s plans may include replacing those classrooms in charting a new chapter in the school’s science history?
After teaching in those rooms for more than a decade, I understand the need for upgrading the facility. The current chemistry and physics classrooms have a nice layout but there are underlying problems with the heating and cooling systems and the structure is not strong enough to hold a second story. Although there are three dedicated labs, there isn’t any space appropriate for the Jesuit Academy nor is there a general lab for the electives we currently offer. With the increased number of students, a new facility would certainly improve their educational experience.

You were also very active in school cocurriculars. What are some specific favorite memories from your times with students outside of the classroom?
Definitely the three times we were national qualifiers in the Toshiba Exploravision Awards program. The year our students took first place, they rented tuxedos for the trip to Washington D.C. and made a very good impression on all the other schools who participated in the finals.

I also have wonderful memories of every play and musical. It’s great to see students work together to accomplish so much in such a short time.
PLANNED GIVING

Gifts to The High from your IRA

By Thomas O’Keefe ’64

As Director of Planned Giving, I have been very involved in identifying the best ways for our benefactors to continue their generous support of The High. Today, I would like to share with you what many believe is the number one gift option for U of D Jesuit donors who will be at least 70 1/2 by December 31, 2011. I am referring to what is known as qualified charitable distributions (QCD). The IRS rules will allow you to make a tax-free transfer up to $100,000 per year from your individual retirement account (IRA). This opportunity is only available through December 31, 2011 unless Congress extends the law. Unlike all other cash donations to The High, you can’t claim itemized deductions for QCDs. This is because your gift of an IRA will pass tax free to the school.

A QCD must meet the following tax-law requirements:

1. It cannot occur before the IRA owner or beneficiary turns age 70 1/2.
2. The gift must be distributed directly from the IRA trustee to an IRS approved charity, such as U of D Jesuit.
3. It must meet the normal tax law requirements for a 100% deductible charitable donation, i.e., there is no "quid pro quo" element of the gift.
4. It must be a distribution that would otherwise be taxable.

The tax saving elements of a QCD include:

1. QCDs are not included in your gross income.
2. A QCD from a traditional IRA counts as a distribution for meeting the required minimum distribution (RMD) rules.
3. For those who don’t itemize, you can save a lot. Instead of taking the RMD, paying the required taxes and then making a gift to The High with the net proceeds, you can donate 100% of the RMD without paying any tax at all.

In addition to lifetime planning by the use of QCDs, there are also estate and income tax advantages that can be gained by proper estate planning for your IRA. The IRS rules in effect require that the beneficiary of an IRA step into the shoes of the owner after his or her death and to report all distributions from the IRA as taxable income. If you leave your IRA to a charity as part of your estate plan, this doesn’t have to happen. If U of D Jesuit were named as the IRA beneficiary, it would pass to the designated charitable beneficiary completely free from income or estate taxes. For this reason, whenever possible, IRAs should be left to charities and non-IRA property should be given to family members.

If you can afford to donate a portion of your IRA money to U of D Jesuit, you will be maximizing the impact of your gift as well as helping yourself tax-wise.

Please contact your tax advisor for more detailed information. Once you have determined that this makes sense for you and your family, you can contact your IRA custodian and request the transfer forms to make the IRA gift.

If you have further questions, please contact me at (313) 927-2342 or thomas.okeefe@uofdjesuit.org.
The 2010-2011 Annual Fund
With the support of the following donors, we met our goal.
PRESIDENT’S REPORT
Fiscal Year 2010-2011

U of D Jesuit Thanks Its Generous Donors!
Dear Alumni, Parents, Alumni-Parents and Friends:

As President of U of D Jesuit, I am delighted to acknowledge the many wonderful benefactors whose names appear on the following pages. I am humbled by the overwhelming support which this school receives. I also realize that there are many individuals who support the school in various ways through their volunteer efforts. We are a stronger institution because of the good will of so many.

In the early years of Jesuit schools, St. Ignatius believed that a Jesuit education should be available to all interested without regard to financial capacity to pay. Our donors share in this vision of accessibility by allowing us to charge less than what it actually costs to educate our young men. Our tuition assistance program, supported in part through the Annual Fund, continues U of D Jesuit’s rich tradition of racial, ethnic and economic diversity.

The generosity of so many offers our young men excellent academics in a Christian environment, as well as expanded programs in college and school counseling, campus ministry and Christian service, a Learning Center and an extensive Retreat Program.

The quality and range of these programs is a hallmark which distinguishes U of D Jesuit.

Thank you to all who support the mission of U of D Jesuit in forming “Men for Others for the greater glory of God.”

God Bless,

Karl J. Kiser, S.J.
President

Among the many generous donations U of D Jesuit received in the 2010-2011 fiscal year was a gift from A.J. Fisher ’38. His $1 million gift under Fisher Family Annual Scholarships will be used over the next ten years to award scholarships to students who otherwise could not afford to attend the school. Mr. Fisher has been a long-time supporter of The High, having made the lead gift to fund the school’s Science Center that was constructed in 1992. His grandson, Gordon, is currently a student at the school.

Last year, Mac Bellovich ’16 questioned his father, Keith ’81, about the class giving section in Highlights, wondering how names were listed. Keith explained that alumni names are listed under their class year for making a gift to support the Annual Fund. Mac thought it would be a great idea if he was able to get his seventh grade classmates listed in the President’s Report. He also challenged Keith, who had a 30th class reunion later that summer. He said his class would have a higher giving percentage than the class of 1981. His classmates responded with 43% of the class donating over $100 for the school. We want to thank Mac for taking the initiative to challenge each of his classmates to give back to The High.
Alumni participation consists of tax-deductible cash gifts or pledge payments to the Annual Fund, capital campaigns, endowments, auction, and special projects for fiscal year July 1, 2010 – June 30, 2011.

ALUMNI NEWS

2011 Grand Reunion Weekend

By David Gumbel ’00

Over 320 alumni attended the 2011 Grand Reunion Weekend June 17th–18th. Men from the classes of 1951, 1956, 1961, 1966, 1971, 1976, 1981, 1986, 1991, 1996, and 2001 spent the weekend renewing friendships, trading stories, giving updates, and having a great time. Some had to squint to recognize the face on the name badge with the face of the person they were talking to while others appeared not to have changed at all. The overall spirit of camaraderie was strong.

This year the Grand Reunion Weekend featured a Friday golf outing at Rackham Golf Course. Alumni then enjoyed a great time in the Commons for the Friday Stag Night.

On Saturday morning, a group of alumni and their guests enjoyed a unique perspective of the city on the Detroit Bike Tour. A bus full of alumni and their guests traveled on a tour of historic Detroit. Special thanks goes to Tom O’Keefe ’64 for leading the bike tour and Dennis Zembala ’60 for serving as the bus tour guide.

On Saturday evening, alumni and their guests attended a Mass honoring deceased classmates and this year’s 50th anniversary class. During the reception, a group of current U of D Jesuit students offered their services as tour guides so past Cubs could take in all of the changes and improvements that have been made over the past 60 years. The alumni were able to see that The High is still turning out intelligent and articulate young men.

Over dinner and drinks the stories and memories began to flow and the Cubs felt that they were home again despite the fact that the cafeteria is now the library, the library is the Chapel again, and the famous handball courts are no more. The events lasted long into the evening and as things began to wind down and the Cubs said goodbye, it was clear that the friendships formed at 8400 South Cambridge truly do last a lifetime.
